

ESN ATHENS AUEB PROUDLY PRESENTS...

Athens: mission impossible ... not!

Erasmus experience is so much more than just an exchange program. It's a lifestyle, it's a party, it's a celebration, it's a Hollywood movie and you are starring!!! And this is a guide to help you explore the setting: Athens!!!!

RELEASE DATE: SEPTEMBER 2010

AthensInAndOut T.H.E.N.S.

We start with a little bit of history...so, what do you know about Athens?

Long before it becomes a great city and the birthplace of democracy, the area of Athens must have been a beautiful place. Otherwise it's impossible to explain the fact that some of the most important ancient gods duelled to give their name to the city.

In the end it was Poseidon, the god of the sea, and Athena, the goddess of wisdom, who reached the final round. Zeus, out of whose head Athena was born, in order to avoid a violent encounter between the two gods, declared that each should make an offer to the new city and the city would be named after the god whose offer would be accepted by the citizens.

Poseidon, who was Zeus' brother, came first and struck the rock of the Acropolis, opening a spring of water. This meant that Poseidon was offering the new city success in war and at the sea.

Then Athena came forward and dropped a seed to the ground. It immediately turned into an olive tree. This was meant to indicate that the goddess was offering the new city the fruits of peace and wisdom, which the citizens accepted and named their city Athens, while the owl, the bird connected with Athena and signified wisdom, became the sacred animal of the Athenians.

Athens Step by Step

So now that you know this story, if you want to discover Athens, you will definitely need your feet! We have prepared a nice walk for you that you can follow more than one time with your national or international friends!!

Acropolis, Makrygianni, Thissio

- * You can start your walk by getting off from Acropolis subway station (red line). Then, you follow Dionysiou Aeropagitou, a beautiful pedestrian road that goes around Acropolis Hill. All the way down is the ancient neighborhood of Thissio, which is connected by the pedestrian road Apostolou Pavlou.
- * At first you will find yourself at the area of Makrygianni. As you walk at Dionysiou Aeropagitou street from the subway station and face Acropolis, you'll see Hadrian's Arch on your right side and the pedestrian road that goes around Acropolis on your left. Opposite, there is a statue of Ioannis Makrygiannis – a leading figure in the 1821 Greek War of Independence – and behind it Vyronos street leading to the area of Plaka.

- * Follow Dionysiou Aeropagitou Street around Acropolis Hill, stop to have a look at Parthenon, and don't forget to see the ancient theatre of Herod Atticus, where music, dance and theatre performances still take place during the summer! A little further you'll see the huge new Acropolis museum, where the Parthenon marbles – apart from those that are still sitting at the British museum in London – and other impressive finds from the Acropolis were recently transported.
- * Soon you will reach a fork in the road. The road on the left heads up to Filopappou Hill, while the one on the right leads to Thissio.
- * If you choose the left side, walk past the church of St Dimitrios and the rocky cell where Socrates was imprisoned and drank his poison; then, follow the road towards the monument of Filopappou. When you are up there, visit as well the historic Pnyx Hill, located between the Hill of the Nymphs and the Hill of the Muses, which in classical years was the gathering point of the Citizen's Assembly.
- * Head back down to the fork at Dionysiou Aeropagitou Street and continue down along Apostolou Pavlou Street, until you reach Thissio, with its historic and neoclassic buildings. There you will find many cafes, shops, bakeries, tavernas and galleries.
- * After a coffee break in Thissio, walk past the train station and head down at the pedestrian road Ermou. A little further and on your right side you will find the ancient cemetery of Kerameikos, where numerous legendary figures of the ancient past were buried and part of the Themistikleian Wall, once circled central Athens, still stands as well as the Sacred Gate.

For foreign magazines and newspapers, there's a store at the pedestrian road Herakleidon Street.

Monastiraki

- * If you choose to turn left from Thission train station you will head up to Ermou Street, passing miscellaneous shops. On your right you will find Avyssiinias Square, where every Sunday the antique market sprawls out. Then, you will find yourself at Monastirki Square, where is the Monastiraki subway station. There you will see many tourists, fruit-sellers as well as the monastery of Pandanassa and the Tzistarakis Mosque.
- * Behind the station you'll find the flea market, a winding pedestrian road full of stores selling clothes, accessories and souvenirs. Walking through it you get at Andrianou Street, lined with neoclassic houses now transformed into busy cafes. Stop at one of the side streets for a quick Ouzo and meze plate, and then head up to Plaka to explore more the city.

Sightseeing

If you want more sightseeing don't forget to include the following!!!

* National Archaeological Museum Of Athens

It's one of the most important museums in Greece and one of the richest in the world as it concerns the ancient Greek art. Its collections include pieces from all the different cultures that flourished in Greece B.C.

* Ancient Agora

Agora was the center of ancient Athens. All the political, commercial, administrative and social activities were taking place there. It was the religious and cultural center, and the seat of justice.

* Temple of Olympian Zeus

The Temple of Olympian Zeus (Olympeion) was the largest temple in Greece. It was an enormous structure that exceeded even the one of Parthenon in size! After the construction of the Zeus' temple, the Athenians honored Hadrian by building an arched gateway at the northwest gate of the sanctuary. The arch bears two inscriptions. The side that faces Acropolis (west facade) reads "This is Athens, the ancient city of Theseus", while the other that faces the temple and the extension of the city by Hadrian, reads "This is the city of Hadrian and not Theseus".

* Lycabettus Hill

Besides Acropolis, Athens has some more places that you can get superb views of the city. One of them is Lycabettus Hill. To get there follow the "telepherique" signs at the corner of Kleomenous and Ploutarchou Streets between Kolonaki square and the Athens Hilton. The view from the top is priceless, from Mount Parnes in the north to Piraeus and Saronic gulf in the west, with Acropolis sitting in the middle like a ruminative lion. There's also a café restaurant up there.

* Sounion, the Temple of Light!

Cape Sounion is renowned by the ruins of the ancient Greek temple of Poseidon, the god of sea according to the classical mythology. It's one of the most imposing temples in Greece. The place is a popular day-trip for tourists in Athens. The sunset over the Aegean Sea viewed from the ruins is a spectacle.

Other destinations while you are in Greece!

- * Saronic Gulf Islands Aegina, Agistri, Poros, Hydra, Spetses
- * Mycenae
- * Delphi
- * Epidaurus
- * Nafplion
- * Meteora

If you live in Athens you also need to know what an EVZONAS is...!

Greek Presidential Guard was founded on the 12th of December 1868 as a combatant and at the same time ceremonial force. The Evzone wearing the “foustanela” (a kind of kilt) and the “tsarouhi” (rustic shoes with pompoms), become a symbol of the Independence War.

The most spectacular changing of the guard is on Sundays at 11 o'clock. The “changing shift” starts with a parade from the Evzone camp in the street of Irodou Attikou, opposite the residence of the President, moving through Vassilissis Sofias towards Syntagma Square.

Nightlife

Athens is a city that never sleeps! Either you are a party animal or a culture lover; in Athens surely you will find what you are searching for!! This city provides different ways of having fun, from nightclubs till classic music's concerts.

For more information you can check the following websites, where you can find what's going on in Athens' cultural life and also information about music, fun, food as far as interactive maps.

Some nightlife places in Athens:

✿ Technopolis / Gazi: The Soho of Athens

Walking down to the end of Ermou street, past the ancient area of Kerameikos you'll find yourself at the traffic lights of Pireos Street, across which you can't miss Technopolis (“art city”), a large complex of buildings that used to be a gas factory and now are hosting several exhibitions and concerts. Cross over and walk through or around Technopolis to its lower exit and you will be at Gazi (also reachable directly via Kerameikos subway station). This area has become very popular the last ten years amongst all varieties of people for its trendy eateries, cafes and bars.

Psirri

It's the centre of students' nightlife in Athens. It's a neighborhood within the old city of Athens and has become the centre of nightlife as it has bars, clubs, places to drink Ouzo and eat, and also Rembetadika (places that have live greek local music). It is located exactly at the centre of Athens (step off at Monastiraki subway station).

Panormou

Another neighbourhood in Athens known for its nightlife: a number of bars, rembetadika, and places to eat and drink are found there at both sides of Panormou Avenue, right outside of the Panormou metro station (blue line).

Athens has also 3 big shopping malls!

The Mall: It's very easy to reach. Just take the train (green line) and get out at Nerantziotissa Station.

Golden Hall: It is located on Kifisias Avenue. To get there take the bus X14 from Syntagma Square till the bus stop Ekthesiako Kentro Helexpo.

athensheart

Athens Heart: It's located on Pireos Street 180 and you can get there by train (green line). You get out at Petralona Station, and then go straight to Pireos Street and you'll see it at the other side of the road on your left hand.

Avenue: It is located in Kifisias Str. also, very close to the Golden Hall. The way to go there is the same with Golden Hall. The distance between them is less than 5 min walking.

For the IKEA lovers... in Athens there are 2 IKEA Stores:

The first one is located near the airport, (you can go there by taking the buses going to the airport) and the second one is located on Kifisou street 96, Aigaleo.

! Last but not least... if you want to be updated any time about what's going on in Athens... Check out the newspaper www.athensplus.gr with all the news written in English and in the last pages you will find all the duty hospitals, or www.ekathimerini.com .

Athens University of Economics and Business

The Athens University of Economics and Business (AUEB) was originally founded in 1920 under the name of Athens School of Commercial Studies. It was renamed in 1926 as the Athens School of Economics and Business, a name that was retained until 1989 when it assumed its present name, the Athens University of Economics and Business.

It is the third oldest University in Greece and the oldest one in the general fields of Economics and Business. The University offers undergraduate (B.A. or B.Sc.), graduate (M.Sc. or M.B.A.) and doctoral (Ph.D) degrees. It is comprised of 8 departments as follows:

- * Accounting and Finance
- * Business Administration
- * Economics
- * Informatics
- * International and European Economic Studies
- * Management Science and Technology
- * Marketing and Communication
- * Statistics

Each department of the Athens University of Economics and Business awards an undergraduate degree (Ptychion) equivalent to a four-year B.A. or B.Sc. in their respective fields. Students are accepted after a successful nation-wide entrance examination. On the average, only one out of seven candidates is admitted. In some departments the competition is even higher. AUEB departments traditionally accept the candidates with the highest scores in the entrance exams.

Undergraduate Courses in English

There are many courses offered in English, mainly for international students who come to AUEB under the Erasmus program. A total of approximately 60 courses are offered in English, each one counting towards 6 ECTS credits. For a complete listing of these courses, the reader is advised to consult the Erasmus office of the University, at http://www.aueb.gr/pages_en/erasmus/index.php.

Our exchange program is also particularly strong. Through the Erasmus program, every year about 220 AUEB undergraduate students leave our campus to spend a semester or a year to a University in another European country, while 270 students from international Universities come to spend an equivalent time at AUEB, thus rendering AUEB the "most per-capita-intensive" exchange program in Greece.

A. Transportation H.E.N.S.

Buses, trolleys, subway and tram are used for public transportation in Athens. In Athens operate three subway line and one suburban railway line. During the weekdays the metro line operate till 00:00 and during Friday and Saturday the blue and red line (lines 2&3) operate till 2 am and the green one (line 1) till 2.15 am.

The ticket price is 1€ and the reduced price for students 0,50€. The ticket is valid for all the means of public transportation and you can travel with it up to 1,5 hour after the validation time.

No1. In order to get the reduced student price you should have the Greek University's student Card for transportation (Named Paso)

No2. If you use a lot the public transportation, you can buy a monthly card (35 € full price or 18 € reduced price) which is valid for an unlimited number of journeys for one calendar month. You can buy it only the first days of the month in every Metro Station (Blue and Red line) and some train stations like Monastiraki, Attiki and Omonoia.

No3. Due to works at the Green line (no1) of the metro there is temporary closure of some stops.

For any information about public transportation you can always call 185 or visit www.oasa.gr

If you want to go to the AIRPORT, you have several options:

A. METRO In this route the price of the regular ticket is €6 and the reduced ticket costs €3. There is an airport train every 30 minutes.

B. BUSES X92, X93, X94, X95 (You can take it from Syntagma square) X96, X97. In this route the regular ticket costs 3.20 € and the reduced 1.60 €. If you have the monthly card, you don't have to pay for a ticket.

C. SUBURBAN RAILWAY You can take it from Neratziotissa Station (connection with the green line). There is a train every 30 minutes.

You can check the plane arrivals and departures on Athens International Airport on the website www.aia.gr

BEACH time...

If you take a look at the map of Athens, you will see that there are plenty of beaches at the south and east side of the city.

The easiest way to go to the beaches that are located at the southern part of Athens is by tram. Starting from the Tram Stop at Syntagma square, you can choose to get off at any tram stop after Edem stop where there are many sandy beaches. Moreover, you can get the bus for Varkiza beach which is E22 and you can take it from A) The corner of Sina and Panepistimiou Street, B) Syntagma square, or the bus 171 from Aghios Dimitrios metro station.

(Keep in mind that it's possible to be asked to pay an entrance fee while some of the beaches there are private)

To visit the beaches that are at the east side of the city, like Porto Rafti and Schinias (Σχινιάς) and Sounio, you can take one of the subrbal buses (KTEΛ), starting point right behind AUEB building. Don't forget to ask for reduced price ticket.

Getting a taxi in Athens

To find a taxi in Athens is quite easy. You can stop it at the street as long as it has its taxi label on or you can call for it. You have to know that to stop a taxi in the street is cheaper than to call it as you pay also for the call. In every case there is a minimum tariff of 2, 85€ and after 00:00 the tariffs are doubled.

Some telephone numbers for calling a taxi:

- Radiotaxi kosmos 18300 , or
- Radiotaxi Ikaros 2105152800

Time to travel around GREECE???

You have seen everything in Athens and you want to travel around Greece? There are many traveling options but you have to search for the best. For example if you want to go to Thessaloniki it's easier for you to take the train...

Here are some telephone numbers to make your life easier:

- National Buses (KTEL) number: 2105124910
- National railway station number: 1110 and 2105297777 and www.ose.gr
(You can also go to Larissa station with the metro and ask in person for information about the trains)
- Information for ships and buses' timetables: 14944

Moreover, as you already know, Greece has some of the most beautiful islands in the world! In order to visit them, you have to go to Piraeus port. Before making your plans check the following numbers and websites:

Port authority of Piraeus: 2104147800

Ship companies' websites:

A.T. Hungry? E.N.S.

Are you hungry? Hmmm... What to eat? You open the menu of the tavern and the dishes sound Greek to you? At this menu you will find illustrated explanations of the most famous Greek foods and beverages:

- 1) Greek salad (Greek: Χωριάτικη Σαλάτα): True Greek salad is essentially a tomato salad made of sliced or chopped tomatoes with a few slices of cucumber, red onion, and feta cheese, seasoned with salt, black pepper, oregano and basil, dressed with olive oil.

Make sure that you ask for the reduced student price by showing you Greek University's student Card (PASO)! (25% discount from the full price)

- 2) Tzatziki (Greek: Τζατζίκι): Tzatziki is made of strained yoghurt to which are added cucumbers (either pureed and strained or seeded and finely diced), garlic, salt, cracked black pepper and usually olive oil, dill, sometimes lime juice and parsley, or mint.

- 3) Souvlaki (Greek: Σουβλάκι): is a popular Greek fast food consisting of small pieces of meat and sometimes vegetables grilled on a skewer. It may be served on the skewer for eating out on hand, in a pita sandwich with garnishes and sauces or on a dinner plate accompanied by fried potatoes.

- 4) Moussakas (Greek: Μουσακάς): In the standard (3-layer) Greek recipe, the bottom layer consists of eggplant slices sautéed in olive oil; the middle layer is ground lamb precooked with onion, garlic, chopped tomatoes, herbs, and spices; and the top layer is a cheese-flavoured béchamel sauce.

- 5) Pastitsio (Greek: Πασιτίσιο): Pastitsio is a layered baked dish. Typically the bottom layer is bucatini or other tubular pasta with cheese and egg as a binder; the second layer is ground meat (beef, veal or lamb) with tomato and cinnamon, nutmeg, or allspice; the third is another layer of pasta; and the top layer varies from an egg-based custard to a Béchamel.

- 6) Dolma (Greek: Ντολμά): Common vegetables to stuff include zucchini, eggplant, tomato and pepper. The stuffing may or may not include meat.

Coffees:

Café frappé is a foam - covered iced coffee drink made from spray - dried instant coffee. Frappé are available in three degrees of sweetness, sweet, medium and plain. All varieties may be served with evaporated milk (με γάλα [me gala])

Greek coffee is a coffee from powered roast coffee beans, served into a cup, prepared by finely boiling in a pot (with sugar if you want), where the dregs settle.

Ouzo, the Greek schnapps!

It is the Uzi of the spirits! Really strong, super natural, ouzo is reported to be good for health. It is actually an anise-flavoured liqueur, tasting quite like the French pastis or the Italian Sambuca. It is served with fish and seafood starters (called “mezedes” – don’t wait for the main course, nor your own plate. Be careful, as Wikipedia warns: “Ouzo starts by distilling 96% alcohol by volume pure ethyl alcohol of agricultural origin (or 96 percent pure ethyl alcohol in which 0.05 percent natural anethole has been added)”!

Rakomelo

Greek: ρακόμελο, from raki (ρακι) + meli (μέλι), meaning honey. It is an alcoholic drink produced from honey. It is a liqueur combining tsikoudia/tsipouro/raki with honey and several spices, such as cinnamon, cardamom, or other regional herbs. It is produced in Crete and other islands of the Aegean Sea or on the Greek mainland, chiefly consumed during the winter as a warm drink.

Psimeni Raki

Greek : Ψημένη Ρακι = baked raki. A regional drink of the island of Amorgos that is made from raki and sugar.

You can find places where you can taste these traditional drinks in Psirri area or Thissio area (Monastiraki and Thissio metro station respectively) .

In case that you are hungry and you're searching for Super Markets close to University...

1. Nova Alimenta - Patision street 120 (28is oktobriou street 120)
2. Champion Marinopoulos - 3rd September street 77
3. Carrefour Ampelokipi - Kifisias avenue 7 (not indicated in the map)

University Restaurant: The restaurant is placed on the underground floor of the main building and it's open from noon till 4pm for lunch and from 7pm till 9pm for dinner. There you can eat with 2 euros per day. More specifically, you will have to pay 2 euros for lunch and then you can eat dinner for free showing the receipt you got earlier that day.

Cafeteria: AUEB contains a cafeteria on the underground floor as well, when you can take some fast food or drink some beverages and coffee.

Outside Catering: Close to AUEB there are a lot of fast food shops, either at Patision str. or at Victoria's square
