

University Ranking by Academic Performance (URAP)

URAP focuses on Universities' academic performance. URAP gathers data from around 2500 Higher Education Institutions and ranks the top 2000.

The evaluation criteria are:

- Total number of scientific articles in the last 5 years (Source: Web of Science). (Weight: 21%)
- Total number of citations in the last 5 years (Source: Web of Science). (Weight: 21%)
- Total document count that covers all scholarly literature including conference papers, reviews, letters, discussions, scripts in addition to journal articles published in the last 5 years. (Weight: 10%)
- Article Impact Total (AIT): A measure of scientific productivity corrected by the institution's normalized Citation Per Publication (CPP) with respect to the world CPP in 41 subject areas. The ratio of the institution's CPP and the world CPP indicates whether the institution is performing above or below the world average in that field. This ratio is multiplied by the number of publications in that field and then summed across the 41 fields. It is an indicator that aims to balance the institution's scientific productivity with the field normalized impact generated by those publications in each field. (Weight: 18%)
- Citation Impact Total (CIT): A measure of research impact corrected by the institution's normalized Citation Per Publication (CPP) with respect to the world CPP in 41 subject areas. The ratio of the institution's CPP and the world CPP indicates whether the institution is performing above or below the world average in that field. This ratio is multiplied by the number of citations in that field and then summed across the 41 fields. It is an indicator that aims to balance the institution's scientific impact with the field normalized impact generated by the publications in each field. (Weight: 15%)
- International Collaboration: A measure of global acceptance for each university. International collaboration data are obtained from Iccites, based on the total number of publications made in collaboration with foreign universities. (Weight: 15%)
